

Paul Gunter

Mr. Gunter is the Director of the Reactor Oversight Project, Beyond Nuclear (beyondnuclear.org). He specializes in reactor hazards and security of operating reactors; prevention of new reactor construction; regulatory oversight; climate change; the nuclear power-nuclear weapons connection; organizing and movement-building; radiation impacts on health; and wildlife impacts.

Mr. Gunter is lead spokesperson in nuclear reactor hazards and security concerns. He acts as the regulatory watchdog over the US Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the nuclear power industry. He is 2008 recipient of the Jane Bagley Lehman Award from the Tides Foundation for environmental activism for his work on the nuclear power and climate issue. He has appeared on NBC Nightly News, the Lehrer News Hour, BBC World New and Amy Goodman's Democracy Now. He was cofounder of the antinuclear Clamshell Alliance in 1976 to oppose the construction of the Seabrook (New Hampshire) nuclear power plant through non-violent direct action that launched the US antinuclear movement. Prior to joining Beyond Nuclear he served for 16 years as the Director of the Reactor Watchdog Project for Nuclear Information and Resource Service. An environmental activist and energy policy analyst, he has been an ardent critic of atomic power development for more than 30 years. Mr. Gunter is a New Englander who was born in Mississippi and raised in Detroit.
